Alert pursues European market approval

Alert, through partnerships with GEA (Global Environmental Alliance) and their European partner, Eurotank, is pursuing ATEX, Intrinsic safety certification for their underground storage tank precision leak detection systems.

The leading manufacturer of leak detection systems in the US has submitted systems for ATEX approvals required to meet new, more stringent standards for use in hazardous locations.

This will include both our state of the art mass based Underfill system and the most accurate Ullage system on the market. Utilizing our latest material upgrades in conjunction with galvanic barriers for further safety enhancements.

We look forward to working with our European partners in meeting growing requirements for enhanced leak detection capabilities at affordable prices.
